

Bethune Energy announces $6 million donation to Kershaw County Health Services District

The donations to the Health Services District of Kershaw County will provide support to continue providing necessary healthcare services to residents in Kershaw County.

Bethune, SC – Bethune Energy, the natural gas plant planned for Kershaw County, today announced the donation of $6 million over-20 years to the Health Services District of Kershaw County, helping ensure long-term success and the opportunity to grow health care in the community.

The donation will allow the Health Services District to promote its mission of ensuring access to healthcare in Kershaw County. The funding will provide unhindered support as the Health Services District strives to fulfill its mission.

"Investing in this community is an essential part of launching our new facility," said Dylan Casey, Vice President of Development for Beaufort Rosemary. "The Health Services District has a proven track record, and this partnership solidifies our core commitment to being a dedicated, long-term partner in the Bethune area and Kershaw County."

Through partnerships like this one, Bethune Energy plans to contribute to the community in a way that ensures local and County residents benefit.

"We appreciate Bethune Energy's commitment to our community. This contribution will provide unrestricted support to our organization and its mission of providing robust access to medical care and wellness resources in Kershaw County," said Derial Ogburn, Board Chairman of the Health Services District. "This partnership reflects a collaborative approach to meet resident needs and improve the lives of our community members."

The Health Services District will begin receiving annual donations once the plant is operational. Bethune Energy anticipates construction will begin in 2028/29 and operations to start by 2031. More information about the project can be found at bethuneenergy.com.

#

About Bethune Energy

Bethune Energy is a proposed natural gas fueled electricity generating facility near the town of Bethune in Kershaw County, South Carolina. The project represents a roughly $900 million investment and 500 megawatts of reliable, resilient, and affordable energy that will contribute to an energy system designed for South Carolina's future. It is being developed by Beaufort Rosemary, a greenfield energy project developer with over 30 years experience focusing on natural gas, geothermal, wind and large utility scale solar, and storage projects. Find out more at bethuneenergy.com.

About The Health Services District of Kershaw County

Created by the South Carolina General Assembly in 1952, The Health Services District of Kershaw County (operating as the Kershaw County Hospital Board) is dedicated to ensuring robust access to healthcare, long-term care, and wellness resources across the community. Governed by a nine-member Board of Trustees appointed by the Kershaw County Council, the District owns the Kershaw Health facilities (leased to MUSC Health), owns and operates Karesh at Beechwood, and administers community healthcare grants to promote healthy living throughout the county. For more information, visit healthdistrictkc.org.